

World Hunger Challenge

Families,

I am excited to share that we have joined the World Hunger Challenge and by submitting illustrated recipes to the Students Rebuild website, we can earn $6 for each recipe. Here is information about the program:

“Students Rebuild, a program of the Bezos Family Foundation, mobilizes young people to take action on the world’s most critical problems.

With the Hunger Challenge, we’re gathering around a global table to learn about hunger in all its guises—malnutrition, food insecurity, “food deserts,” and more—and to investigate how hunger interferes with education and development to prevent too many young people from living full, healthy lives. We’re also looking at what can be done to end hunger—from emergency relief in places dealing with conflict like Yemen, to longer-term solutions like training the next generation of urban farmers in the United States.

Join us in the @StudentsRebuild Hunger Challenge and create an artistic recipe! Your artwork will be matched with a $6 donation— up to $700,000— to support @UNICEF’s therapeutic food intervention programs in Yemen and Ethiopia, @MarysMeals educational food services in India and Malawi, and 8 community-based organizations. www.studentsrebuild.org/hunger #HungerChallenge”

Here is what I am asking you to do:

You can watch Episode 6 of Create. Make. Play. As it demonstrates how to participate, but here are the directions below.

Create an artfully illustrated version of a recipe—an actual one or an imaginative one—that reflects culture, community, and connection.

Take a photo of that recipe and email it to me @ Alison_francis@fcasd.edu. I will then submit it under our Team’s name.

Discussions about hunger should be age appropriate and reflect your family’s values on such issues. If you want to talk about this recipe helping to end hunger you can simply say, “Do you know how when you feel hungry you eat something to make that feeling go away? Some children aren’t lucky enough to always have that food to eat, so by making this artwork, we are helping to make sure that all kids have food to eat”

Or if your family donates to the food bank, you can share that this is another way to help feed children.

If you are not comfortable talking about hunger with your child, that's okay! You can just share that this recipe is a way for you to share with others things that your family does.

While you can certainly make a food recipe, you can make a:

Recipe for a friend
Recipe for a smile
Recipe to enjoy the sun
Recipe to enjoy the rain
Recipe to make mud cakes
Recipe to have fun with your family
Recipe for love
Recipe on how to play
Recipe to be joyful
Recipe to build a bloom (plant a seed)
Recipe for laughter
You get the idea!

I would love it if everyone could contribute to this important project. You can submit more than one recipe per person. All family members are welcome to contribute a recipe.